

For Businesses That Want to Recycle

If you are a business whose trash hauler is not a full-service provider, you can still recycle!!

With the ever-increasing cost of doing business, all entrepreneurs must seriously examine their options for saving money and/or resources. One big opportunity is in moving materials from the waste stream into the re-use stream. When a business elects the recycling option, a weekly diversion of just one ton of refuse can translate to an annual savings of $2,900! Any business can save resources, fuel, and other costs by conducting a thorough waste audit, and then by implementing the strategy revealed by its analysis.

Re-use of products such as cardboard and asphalt have saved businesses substantial sums of money. Metals and plastics are valuable items that can be readily recycled through the City's recycling plant. Local metal salvage companies offer cash for scrap metals, transforming an "expense" into income! In addition to the cost savings in disposal, a company can claim the mantle of an environmentally responsible and earth-friendly business.

Remember, reduced refuse weight and volume translates to savings in hauling and tipping fees.

Call us at the Material Recovery Facility (355-3496) for help! We'll share good ideas and information, and even offer to conduct a free waste audit at your business. This audit will help you understand how much you can save in disposal fees by re-routing waste into recycling pathways, including pathways that yield cash. This is a winning strategy!

Exercise your right to recycle!!
