Minnesota holds a yearly state-wide archaeology awareness week, in which I helped to promote and facilitate community educational experiences within Minnesota state parks.

I would like to serve in the indicated position(s) because:

In the type of work I do, we are often restricted to projects that are only considering historic and archaeological resources because it is mandated by federal regulations. This can be awesome, and it has allowed me to work on a wide variety of projects across various states. The main goal of these projects, however, is not focused on the long-term preservation of the cultural resources in question. I'm hoping to be a part of the Historic Preservation Commission because I would like to be more involved with the preservation and public outreach aspect of cultural resources management. I moved to Rapid City in August 2017, and was kind of surprised by its unique culture, a lot of which I attribute to the historic character of the city and the area. Being a part of the Historic Preservation Commission would be a great opportunity to use my professional skills for a worthwhile cause, in a cool place.
