GENERAL PUBLIC COMMENT

Brian Peck addressed the council. He has been working on affordable housing for the past several years. He said in order to have affordable housing, he needs affordable developing. The price for a homeless person to have a place to live right now is at a hotel and they are probably paying $2000 per month and can't get a home loan because of the credit situation they are in. He thanked Mayor Allender for his support over the last few years. Lander Solon addressed the council. He spoke of putting reprisals on the record. He said he was at the last meeting and spoke of illegal selective enforcement and special privileges. He spoke of a family member in his 6/5/23 public comment. He said his family member was contacted by government officials after the last council meeting. He said going after a family member as reprisal against him is illegal under the First Amendment. He stated he has addressed his concerns with the city once per year. He suggested the city find better contractors to work with. Patrick Trask stated he heard that council was working on a resolution empathizing with President Biden's intention to eliminate multiple use. He came to speak to fellow Hay Camp people. He said it is a terrible idea and our governor went to speak against that bad idea recently. He said multiple use is stewardship to the max. Please empathize with the ranching families that are the desire and coveted emulation of the whole word.

Doris Lauing spoke on item LF053123-09 regarding the valuation of the city parking lot adjacent to the Stockgrowers' Building. She voiced her appreciation of different council members speaking with her. She said the president of SD Stock Growers was in attendance along with other long-time board members. Their organization has hired legal council regarding this process. The group does not feel removing the existing parking is a good idea. She said they were formed in 1893 and the city should take their opinion into consideration. On behalf of SD Stockgrowers', Lauing asked that the city grants the same opportunity as Property Meld. She asked to change the revocable non-build easement to a non-revocable non-build easement. This would grant them 10-feet no matter what the decision is tonight. This will protect and preserve their building, their stairway and their windows.
