Common Questions

How long are licenses valid?

It is the contractors responsibly to know when their license expires (we do not send out notices) Licensees failing to renew their applications prior to expiration have a 1 year grace period (except for plumbing & electrical contractors) during which to renew, before the license lapses. Licensees who fail to renew within the 1 year grace period shall be required to reapply for a new license, meeting all requirements of this code including passing an examination and paying all required fees. Below are the license terms and fees.

What are the insurance requirements for all licenses?

Every applicant shall present a certificate of insurance naming the "City of Rapid City, as the certificate holder. It shall be the duty of every licensee to continually maintain valid liability insurance. The minimum required general aggregate liability shall be $1,000,000, with $300,000 fire damage and $1,000,000 each occurrence. Under South Dakota state law, proof of workers compensation insurance is required unless you choose to sign the worker's compensation statement of non-participation (page 4)

What are the continuing education requirements?

Six hours per license period for General Building Contractor licenses, Sign Contractors, Roofing Contractors, Siding Contractors and Mechanical license holders. For licenses pursuant to the electrical and plumbing code, they are regulated by the State of South Dakota. It is the licensee holders' responsibility to provide proof of continuing education, examples: certificate of completion or letter identifying class taken, date, how many credit hours, and provided on letterhead from the company providing the class. Sign in sheets are not accepted.

South Dakota State Law does not require a proprietorship or partnership to participate in the State Worker's Compensation program as long as no person is employed by the same. The above listed partnership or proprietorship has no employees and does not participate in the South Dakota Worker's Compensation program.

However, South Dakota Statutes state that you may be liable for worker's compensation claims where "employees" of another could sustain work related injuries.

Proof of a general liability policy has been secured by the above stated parties, as required by Rapid City Ordinance 15.13.015(F). Above party has informed his/her insurance carrier to contact Department of Building Inspection if said coverage is discontinued for any reason.

I/We certify that the above statements are true, and further agree to immediately notify the Rapid City Building Inspection Department in writing of any changes in the same.
