In response to a question from Drew regarding the use of cattle guard section as a barrier to separate and control the area, Fisher stated that it does meet the requirements and exceed, what many facilities currently use.

Discussion on the exit of the building and expanded patio area followed in the case of a fire within the building.

Talbot Wieczorek of Gunderson Palmer, attorney for the applicant, noted that the panels are not permanent structures and are designed to come apart. He also noted that if a fence or gate was placed in the barrier it would require stationed security.
